Is Out of Politics.

BECAUSE COUNTRY WANTS HIM

Lawrence A. Abbott Declares Only Reason Rough Rider Roosevelt Would Ever Again Occupy the Presidential Chair Would Be to Perform Some Duty at Nation's Call—Has Not Consulted With Colonel on Question of His Candidacy.

Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is not a candidate for the presidency, according to Lawrence A. Abbott, president of the Outlook company of New York, with which Mr. Roosevelt is actively associated. This statement is made in the Local Press, a weekly newspaper published here, the home of Mr. Abbott.

The statement is long and reviews Mr. Roosevelt's connection with national politics during the last three years. It was brought out, so the editor of the Local Press says, when he asked Mr. Abbott whether Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate for the presidency. "You must understand to begin with," Mr. Abbott says in what is termed a dictated statement, "that whatever I say in answer to your question, I say solely on my own responsibility and without any consultation with Mr. Roosevelt."

"You ask me whether Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate for the presidency. I answer, no. He is not a candidate; he doesn't desire to be a candidate; he has discouraged, and is discouraging in every possible way, all talk of his candidacy; and he will take no active share of any kind in the contests of various candidates—contests which are always in evidence for two or three months preceding any national convention."

Declined Nomination in 1908.

Mr. Abbott tells how Mr. Roosevelt declined the Republican nomination in 1908, "which he very easily could have had," and how Mr. Taft's nomination and election were brought about.

"His (Roosevelt's) political experience contributed so largely to the successful result of the election that his critics have said that he alone nominated and elected Taft," Mr. Abbott says, and continues: "Unfortunately some of Mr. Taft's advisers took this mistaken view of the case and urged him to separate himself so thoroughly from any Roosevelt associations that his administration could create its own policies and that thus he might be renominated and re-elected in 1912 on his own individual merits, 'without any taint of Rooseveltism.'"

Mr. Roosevelt has never failed, Mr. Abbott asserted, to respond quickly and cordially to the slightly wishy-washed by Mr. Taft for his company or his views and he instances the private interview at New Haven during the autumn of 1910 between Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt. That meeting, he says, it has been unfortunately announced, was sought by Mr. Roosevelt for the purpose of getting some help in his contest with the "old guard" of the state. He adds:

Taft Sought Roosevelt's Advice.

"The facts are—and I have learned them, not from Mr. Roosevelt, but from a friend of Mr. Taft's who knew all the circumstances—that Mr. Taft sent word to Mr. Roosevelt asking him to come in order that he (Mr. Taft) might get the benefit of Mr. Roosevelt's advice regarding the serious split in the national affairs of the Republican party, which resulted from the fight of the progressives against so-called 'Cannonism.'"

Mr. Abbott asserts that whatever Mr. Roosevelt does or says will be interpreted by some critics to his disadvantage and he instances an article of Mr. Roosevelt's on the trust question published several weeks ago. Its publication was held by some, Mr. Abbott says, to be an indication that Roosevelt was seeking the presidency and that the appearance of the article was timed by him at just the psychological moment to produce the greatest effect. If there was any political astuteness in its appearance, according to Mr. Abbott, it should go to the editors of his publication, who suggested the article and fixed the date for its publication.

If Mr. Roosevelt is ever elected president again, according to Mr. Abbott, it will not be because he seeks or wants the office, but because the country wants him to perform a certain job.

Reduces Duties on Steel and Iron.

Washington, Jan. 5.—A bill making a general reduction of from 30 to 35 per cent on all steel and iron duties of the present Payne-Aldrich tariff law was agreed upon by a house ways and means subcommittee. The bill would add to the free list carpenter tools and other articles of ordinary use among consumers.

Battleship 'Bids Opened.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Bids for the construction of the two 27,000-ton battleships Oklahoma and Nevada were opened here. The lowest proposals were from the New York Shipbuilding company of Camden, N. J., at $5,926,000 for one ship and the Fore River Shipbuilding company of Quincy, Mass., at $5,925,000 a ship.

DECLARES HE IS

Pleases La Follette.

HAS PTOMAIN POISONING

Although Still Feeling Some Ill Effects From Eating Oysters in Chicago Wisconsin Senator Speaks in Seven Cities, Winding Up at Peoria—Mention of Colonel Roosevelt's Name Brings Forth Quick Ripple of Applause.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 5.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, after making addresses at Joliet, Morris, Streator, Ottawa, La Salle and Springfield, in spite of the fact that he suffered from ptomaine poisoning, due to eating oysters in Chicago, spoke to a large audience in Peoria.

He declared himself pleased with his first day's tour of Illinois cities and will continue his Illinois campaign for the nomination for president by advocating progressive Republican principles.

Mr. La Follette's speech was similar to those delivered heretofore. In the up state towns the tariff came in for scoring, as did the congressmen who, he declared, were working for the special interests. The senator believed the time had arrived when the people should do away with the old time method of political bossism.

Monopoly, he declared, had destroyed legitimate business. He urged his hearers to defeat the old machine, so that the government could be put into the hands of the people and once more be a representative form.

Before reaching the theater in this city Senator La Follette was attacked with a severe spell of nausea. When he made his appearance he was vigorously cheered. Chairman McRoberts introduced him as the "man who has made good and knows how."

Refers to Anti-Trust Law.

The senator took exceptions to statements in newspapers making him say the Sherman anti-trust law was the finest piece of legislation in existence. He told how he offered amendments to that law; and how, in his belief, if every attorney general had rigorously enforced that law, the present condition of affairs might not now exist.

In speaking on this subject Senator La Follette mentioned the name of Roosevelt. This brought forth a quick ripple of applause. The name was not again mentioned by any speaker.

In speaking of the tariff Senator La Follette said: "I do not believe in the Democratic idea of putting all manufacturing articles on the free list. That would mean practically all articles manufactured by trusts. I believe the tariff should be a protection to labor, and labor alone; and that it should be governed by the difference in conditions between the laboring men of this country and those of foreign countries."

His attack on Senator Aldrich and his description of how the United States senate was organized into committees by which measures were smothered or shoved through was enjoyed by his listeners.

An informal reception was held on the stage of the theater at the conclusion of his address and several hundred men shook hands with the senator.

ENDS LIFE BEFORE TRIAL

Former South Dakota Sheriff Swallows Laudanum.

Woonsocket, S. D., Jan. 5.—The statutory charge against former Sheriff Plotner, which was being tried in Woonsocket, came to a tragic end when the dead body of the defendant was found a mile and a half north of the city.

Plotner had been missing and when court was called he failed to put in an appearance. Sheriff McRay exhausted every effort to locate the man in the county. Judge Jones dismissed the jury and decided the $1,500 bond forfeited, under which Plotner had had his liberty through the trial.

Two boys were in the vicinity of the dump ground and found Plotner's body there, he having committed suicide by taking laudanum, a means which he has used in two previous attempts.

On account of the disappearance of Plotner the case against Mrs. Kate Quinn was continued.

WHITE HOUSE POLICE TO GO

Taft Decides to Send Guards Back to Precinct Duty.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Hereafter there will not be a policeman on duty inside the White House.

The president does not feel that police protection is necessary. The order becomes effective at once and means that twenty-two policemen, some of whom have been on duty at the White House more than fifteen years, will go back to precinct duty.

Marines, soldiers or an increased secret service force is likely to guard the president.

ROOSEVELT BOOM IN DAKOTA

Grand Forks Times Sees No Hope for Taft or La Follette.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 5.—Theodore Roosevelt as presidential timber was endorsed by the Evening Times in a leading editorial committing that publication to the support of his candidacy as against William H. Taft or Robert M. La Follette. It was the first boom for Roosevelt in North Dakota during the present campaign or since it has been rumored that Roosevelt would likely become a candidate again.

The Times, owned by the Times-Herald Publishing company, which also control the Grand Forks Herald, sees no hope for the nomination and election of La Follette and looks upon Taft as not being the choice of North Dakotans on account of his reciprocity stand.

BRANDEIS TALKS ABOUT TRUST EVILS

Says La Follette Bill Would Strengthen Sherman Law.

Minneapolis, Jan. 5.—Louis D. Brandeis in two speeches discussed the trust question and the industrial situation in general.

He contended that the trusts do not offer economic advantages over the competitive system, because rivalry stimulates efficiency and invention. The steel corporation, he says, has increased the cost of manufacturing steel, has decreased dividends on the investment, has not enabled the United States to keep pace with England and Germany in increase of exports of steel products and has not improved the quality of the product.

La Follette's anti-trust bill, he contended, would make the Sherman law effective. It would enable people damaged by the trust to collect treble damages, would compel monopolies to prove that they are "reasonable" if they want to exist and would prohibit the abuses which have been the means of making big corporations monopolies.

Mr. Brandeis said that unless the progressives can get industrial justice there will be revolution and the capitalist class therefore should help instead of fight constructive statesmen like La Follette.

The executive committee of the Progressive league adopted resolutions reaffirming its endorsement of La Follette for the presidency, but expressing admiration for Roosevelt's work as president and his assistance to the progressive cause.

BRING TAFT MEN TOGETHER

Conference of Wisconsin Supporters at Milwaukee Jan. 20.

Milwaukee, Jan. 5.—A conference of Taft supporters, followed by a banquet to bring Taft men together, will be held at the Auditorium about Jan. 20. It is expected that from 1,000 to 1,500 Republicans from all parts of the state will attend.

Acceptances have already been received from over 200 well known Republicans and more letters are coming in every day. Among those who have written to approve of the idea are former Governor W. D. Hoard, Fort Atkinson; E. A. Edmonds, Appleton; both former La Follette men, and George Buckstaff, Oshkosh.

The arrangements for the gathering are in the hands of E. L. Phillips, the Wisconsin Taft manager. An effort will be made to bring some cabinet officers to Milwaukee to make a speech.

Green Bay, Wis., Jan. 5.—The frozen body of an unidentified man was found in the school yard at Big Suisun. The man was about fifty years old.

COMPARE TAFT
WITH HARRISONParallel Between the 1912
Campaign and That of 1892.

ONE IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE.

Harrison Was Personally Unpopular While Taft Is Not—Cabinet Members at Home—Mrs. Wiley For Parcels Post—Congressmen Who Were Buried in Washington.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.
Washington, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—A group of politicians were trying to show each other wherein this year and 1892 were similar or where they differed. "The Republican president that year was unpopular," said one, "and it appears that the Republican president now is unpopular."

"With this difference," remarked another—"Harrison was personally unpopular; Taft is presidentially unpopular. Few people liked Harrison; most everybody likes Taft. It was not because they found fault with Harrison as a president that there was such an effort to defeat him, but because so many men in the Republican party did not like him. This year it is the other way. Taft is well liked personally, but the opposition comes from those who don't like him as president."

Does It Make Much Difference?

Naturally the question arises as to whether it makes much difference in the general result whether a man is "personally unpopular" or "presidentially unpopular." The man who does not get enough votes won't be elected. The question is whether the unpopularity of President Taft is sufficient to prevent his election. That's what makes the present political situation interesting.

Comparative Influences.

Congressman Weeks of Massachusetts was joked about his lack of influence with Meyer and Hitchcock, members of the cabinet from his state. "How much influence have you with your cabinet members?" he was asked. "As much as they have in Massachusetts," was the tart response.

One Expert Enough.

The wife of Dr. Wiley, the pure food expert of the agricultural department, headed a delegation of women from Washington recently which appeared before the senate committee on post offices and post roads in behalf of a parcels post law.

"I live in Virginia a part of the time, not far out of Washington," said Mrs. Wiley, "and I know what it would mean to have a parcels post system. For instance, as it is now, I have to send to a neighbor a mile away for my bread, while it would be no trouble at all for the rural carrier to bring it to me if he were authorized to do so."

"Well, you could obviate that difficulty by baking it yourself," said Senator Penrose, a member of the committee.

"My husband says that one food expert in a family is enough," was her reply.

City of Distances.
To look at them the office buildings of the house and senate seem comparatively near each other, but their occupants occasionally find that appearances are deceptive.

Senator Hitchcock has an office in the north wing.

"My home is a mile away," he said one day. "When I feel like taking a half hour's constitutional I frequently do one of two things. If I feel specially vigorous I walk home, but if I think I may want a bite to eat to break the trip I go and see my friend, Congressman Slayden, and take lunch in the senate restaurant on the way."

A Curious Congressional Cemetery.

Members of congress who died in Washington used to be buried in what is known as the Congressional cemetery, though it is no longer used for that purpose. The custom was discontinued more than sixty years ago. Many monuments have been erected there, however, in memory of men in public life, though they were buried elsewhere.

In all there are 185 monuments, but only 100 mark actual burials. The inscriptions give no hint as to any distinction between the character of the monuments, and hence a great many people are under the impression that all represent actual burials.

The monuments are uniform in size and shape and are not specially artistic. In fact, the late Senator Hoar once recorded his protest against them in these words:

"It is certainly adding new terrors to death to propose that in any contingency, whatever may be the poverty or degradation of any member of congress, his body should be put under a structure similar to the cenotaphs now there, which are only excusable on the ground that nobody is buried under them."

A Beauty Contest.

A bevy of schoolgirl excursionists recently visited the senate galleries and amused themselves by voting on whom they considered to be the handsomest senator. Senator Culberson of Texas nearly won, but the matter was not quite decided. It was agreed, however, that Senator Dillingham of Vermont was the most dignified and courtly looking.

M'MANIGAL TO INDIANAPOLIS

Dynamiter Being Brought From Los Angeles by Detectives.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 5.—Under the guardianship of two detectives and securely locked in the storeroom of a sleeping car attached to a Southern Pacific train Orrie E. McManigal arrived here. His car was transferred to an El Paso and Southwestern Rock Island train and in a few minutes was flying north.

No one was permitted to see McManigal. The fact that he was on the train was made known by the conductor.

McManigal is said to be en route to Indianapolis. His route from here will be via Chicago.

SECURE TEN JURORS
IN DYNAMITE TRIAL

Sensations May Develop in Another Los Angeles Case.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5.—Ten jurors were obtained to try Bert H. Connors, one of the three union men indicted on the charge of having inspired to dynamite the county hall of records on Sept. 9, 1910.

The jury panel was exhausted and the panel in another department of the superior court was drawn upon over the objections of Lecompte Davis, Connors' attorney.

That an attempt would be made to connect the hall of records case, for which Connors, F. Ira Bender and A. P. Maple were indicted, with the alleged nationwide dynamite conspiracy was indicated by the state's subpoenaing George Eckman of Seattle, who was brought here by the federal grand jury that is just completing the government's investigation of the McNamara conspiracy.

Much of the evidence against Connors will be furnished by J. Mansell Parks, once thought to be a union man, but whose identity as a detective employed by the district attorney was disclosed when he was arrested with Connors.

Speedy examination of six witnesses, each believed to have an intimate knowledge of the inside affairs of the McNamara defense, was made before the county grand jury on the first day of its probe into allegations that the McNamara defense had tried to bribe jurors in the trial of James B. McNamara.

SIX WITNESSES ARE HEARD

Framework of Government's Case at Indianapolis Reported Laid.

Indianapolis, Jan. 5.—Half a dozen witnesses, most of whom are said to know the details of the explosions at Peoria, Ill., appeared before the grand jury. They also are believed to be able to tell of the identity of persons whom Orrie E. McManigal says directed him to the points where dynamite was to be placed.

The framework alone of the government's case, it was said, has thus far been laid and within two or three days from the office of District Attorney John D. Fredericks of Los Angeles evidence will be brought concerning nearly 100 of the explosions charged to the Iron Workers' union.

SERIOUS FIRE AT ABERDEEN

Fanned by Stiff Wind Flames Raze Six Buildings.

Aberdeen, S. D., Jan. 5.—Fire of unknown origin, which started over L. Pouliot's saloon, burned half a dozen buildings and threatened to destroy the Radisson hotel and First National Bank building.

The loss is estimated at $75,000. The fire walls of the hotel and bank checked the spread of the flames, which were fanned by a high wind. The buildings burned were of wood construction.

Firemen and spectators suffered severely from the cold. The principal losses are: The Woodward pharmacy, Pouliot's saloon, Sheldon's cigar store, Boston lunch room, Aberdeen art studio, Radisson hotel and Jellinek's cigar store.

Additional Evidence Laid Before the President.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Additional evidence intended to indicate that Charles W. Morse is in a serious condition and that his days will be shortened by further incarceration in the Atlanta penitentiary was presented to President Taft and Acting Attorney General Fowler.

T. B. Felder of Atlanta, counsel for Morse, laid before the acting attorney general a report dated Jan. 1 from Dr. A. L. Fowler of Atlanta, declaring that Morse was losing vitality even in the Fort McPherson hospital and his death would be hastened if he were sent back to the penitentiary. Mr. Felder said he had also placed the report in channels to reach the president.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 5.—Hans M. of Sleepy Eye, president of the State bank of Cobden and cashier of the State bank of Sleepy Eye, was acquitted in the Brown county district court on a charge of aiding R. M. West, former cashier of the State bank of Cobden, who pleaded guilty of embezzling more than $12,000 and of suppressing evidence desired by the state.

Attorneys Albert Hauser and Frank Clague asked for a directed verdict and Judge A. R. Pfau so instructed the jury.

SOLVE HIGH COST OF LIVING

President Promises to Consider Worldwide Conference Item.

Washington, Jan. 5.—President Taft may ask the assistance of congress in solving the question of the high cost of living through legislative authorization for the United States to participate in a worldwide conference on the subject.

Professor Irving Fisher of Yale university, who was delegated to press the matter by the American Economic association at its meeting here last week for the purpose, laid the plan before the president. It has been endorsed by many Republican senators and others prominent in official life. The president promised Professor Fisher he would take up the question.

Former Armour Manager Concludes His Testimony.

BYPRODUCTS YIELD BIG SUM

Analysis of Figures Shows Three Cents Profit on Dressed Meat From Each Steer, While Fat of Each Animal Yields Profit of Forty-two Cents. Hides Produce Thirty-seven Cents Profit and Glue Eighteen.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Byproducts yield 97 per cent of the profits of the packing business, according to figures given by William D. Miles, formerly general manager of the Armour Packing company of Kansas City, who concluded his testimony in the trial of the ten Chicago packers, charged with criminal violation of the Sherman law. He gave the company's net profits for 1899 as $202,875.18 in the dressed beef department, based on the slaughter of 204,820 animals.

An analysis of the figures given by the witness showed that the company made but 3 cents profit on dressed meat of each steer killed, while the fat of each animal yielded a profit of 42 cents.

The profit on hides was 37 cents a head and 18 cents profit was obtained from the glue manufactured from the hoofs of each steer. The profit from the fat was fourteen times that yielded by the dressed beef and the profit from the hides was nearly as much. The money made from glue in the hoofs was six times as much as that from the sale of fresh meat, according to Mr. Miles.

Special Counsel Sheehan spent several hours in an effort to compel the witness to admit that these figures were obtained by bookkeeping methods devised by the packers, but was unsuccessful.

England Prefers Older Meat.

Mr. Miles said fresh meat should be sold within three or four days after it is received at the branch house. He said England preferred older meat than this country.

He also declared that large losses were often incurred by meat spoiling at branch houses.

Every packer often overshipped the maximum percentage fixed by the agreement, the witness said. This he declared indicated a desire to push or develop business in certain territories and these overshipments were usually made in profitable territories.

The witness also declared that the packers gave the bonuses to branch house managers who showed the best results. He admitted that he had read the Garfield report on the packing industry.

He said the net profits of the Armour Packing company, from 1894 to 1902, was less than a dollar a head on carcasses of slaughtered animals and this included all profit on byproducts.

On redirect examination Attorney Sheehan questioned Miles on the profits of the Armour Packing company on oleo and sardin oils. The witness said those profits were included in the net profits.

"The figures I gave for 1899 included every dollar of profit received from every source," said the witness.

The Northern Minnesota Editorial Association will meet in annual business session at Long Prairie on January 19th and the program has been announced. There will be papers and discussions bearing on the publishing and printing business, and elaborate preparations have been made for the entertainment of the members. Indications are that the attendance will be larger than at any previous meeting of the association.

Frank Day is on his way to Minnesota and will attend the democratic national committee meeting in Washington. The story is current that Mr. Day is returning to the state to again assume the dictatorship of the party and to assume management of Joseph Folk's campaign for president in the northwest. Many of Frank's old time democratic friends are wondering what his reception will be as leader of the Minnesota hosts—there's a reason.

The largest white pine tree known in the world and called "The King of the Forest," was felled in Idaho near Bovill a few days ago. This tree, which is known to thousands of persons all over the country, scaled 29,800 feet. It had been estimated to contain from 26,000 to 32,000 feet by timber men. It was 207 feet long and 26 feet around the butt and over eight feet in diameter. It was 428 years old. The first log cut from the butt end was 32 feet long and contained 7,200 feet of lumber, which is declared to be the largest white pine log ever made.

It is expected that Alvah Eastman will make his announcement for congressman at large within a short time and it will be received with approval in this section of the state. East-man's record and his political views are an open book, and his assurances of support have come unsolicited by him or his friends, in fact so numerous have they become that the announcement that he will or will not stand for the nomination is a duty he owes his friends who believe he can be nominated and elected and that once in congress he will render good and faithful service to the entire state.

CHRISTMAS DINNER TABLE.

Guest's Name Cut Out on Candle Shade
at Each Place.

A Christmas dinner table quite out of the ordinary is to have a little brass candlestick at each cover with a shade on which the guest's name is cut out and will shine through when the candle is lighted. These shades serve as place cards and the sticks and shades as souvenirs of the occasion. Tiny glass candlesticks might be used instead.

The shades are not hard to make.
If they are of silk, cut them square and finish the edges with a tiny cord of tarnished gold and a tassel at each corner. But with the silk the name will have to be written in gold paint.
Paper should be used if the name is to be perforated. An easy way to do this is to first write it and then perforate it with a stiletto or other sharp instrument. Cut out, it is more effective, but more difficult to accomplish.
Red shades are best for Christmas.
For a centerpiece nothing is more attractive than one of the seven branch candlesticks with the arms turned to form a cluster of lights. These sticks come in lofty height or quite low, and the latter are best for the dinner table since they screen the two sides of the table less. With holly barked at the base and a bunch of mistletoe hanging from the sides of the lamp overhead the result is desirable. These lights left unshaded are very Christmasy. If they are used candlesticks should be arranged around the room and no other illumination be given unless a low power electric light is possible, and even this dims the candles. A group of the five cent glass candlesticks for the center of the dinner table is another possibility. With the bases covered with holly the effect is excellent and not unlike that of the seven branch stick. For the favors the tiny two branch brass sticks would be very attractive.

The Popular Brassiere.

Brassieres of lace or more substantial material find a place in the wardrobe of every woman who is inclined to be a little stout, for no one is fat nowadays. At least no woman will allow the world to become aware of

DAINTY BRASSIERE OF LACE.

her too, too solid proportions if she can get the proper corset and brassiere.

The dainty brassiere pictured is made of all over lace, with a trimming of lace and ribbon. It may be worn under the thinnest frock, yet support of the figure more firmly than an ordinary corset cover.

Saving Plumber's Bills.

If the boiler to your kitchen range once becomes badly rusted there is nothing possible but a new one. It pays to take precautions. At least once a week run the water off from the boiler until it comes entirely clear.
Stagnant water in a boiler often leaves a sediment, especially in rainy weather, where there is a poor filter plant in the city water supply.

As copper boilers rust less easily than zinc ones, the initial expense is well worth while to the property owner.

Besides draining the boiler, the fire in the range should be put out occasionally and all the pipes in the water back drained.

It pays to have a plumber pay a visit of inspection. From him the mistress of a house can learn the care of range, boiler, drainpipes and faucets.
It is easy to put on new washers and make simple repairs—if one only knows how.

It is especially useful to understand about disinfectants. Certain purifiers may be death to germs. They are equally death to the pipes, and the plumber bills follow.

She—Were you ever troubled with dyspepsia?

He—Yes; that's the way it a few

Better to Ask.

"Aren't you ashamed to ask for money?" demanded the social reformer.

farer, "but experience cured me. I got six months for taking it without asking."—Town Topics.

MOON DOGS BRING COLDER WEATHER

Curious Phenomenon is Visible in the Sky at Six O'clock Thursday Evening

30 BELOW, WINDY AT MIDNIGHT

Brainerd Faces Bitter Blast From Medicine Hat—Plumbers and Coal Dealers Busy

Moon dogs sported in the sky around the moon at six o'clock last evening and the curious phenomenon was witnessed by many people. Some argued it signified war, while others said it meant 50 below and the cold weather advocates apparently have reached the proper conclusion.

The moon had four streaks of light radiating from it like spokes from the hub of a wheel. Surrounding the moon was a large circle of light and wherever the bars touched this circle there were luminous patches of light looking like a set of smaller moons. Off in the distance were a number of faint circles of light.

At midnight the thermometer commenced sliding down the scale and the one in the leeway side of the Minnesota & International railway dispatchers' office window registered 30 below at twelve o'clock. A strong wind further tended to make the late pedestrian wonder about how much coal or wood he had in his basement.

Coal and wood dealers are rushed to fill orders for fuel. There is a great demand for hard wood and one dealer had none at all except bass wood and jack pine. The plumbers are making money thawing out and repairing burst water pipes and the negligent tenant who neglected to turn off the water at night is receiving an emphatic lecture from his landlord.

The visiting nurse, Miss Edith Bohike, is answering many calls for assistance and the city should do everything possible to aid her in her work of alleviating suffering and supplying clothes, medicine, fuel and other necessities. St. Hall performed a service to humanity in general when he took out his snow plow and cleaned the walks of practically the entire city. Had he not done so the deep snow by this time would be caked so hard one could not shovel it away.

At the government dam at Gull Lake Supt. Snettinger reports the thermometer as having registered 31 below Thursday and 36 below this morning. 41 below is probably the coldest recorded there this winter.

Many of the cheap thermometers in the city are unreliable and will record four different kinds of weather in a block, or burst when things become too cold.

MR. GEMMELL ISSUES DENIAL

General Manager of the Minnesota & International Ry. Says No Extension is Contemplated

NO REQUISITION FOR STEEL

Asserts That Company Has Not Purchased the Funkley-Kelliher Spur Track

In a long distance message from Bemidji Thursday evening, Mr. W. H. Gemmell, general manager of the Minnesota & International railway, stated that the report published in The Dispatch to the effect that the railway contemplated an extension which would shorten the route to Winnipeg 80 miles was entirely without foundation.

Mr. Gemmell asserted that the road had not purchased the Funkley-Kelliher extension from the Crookston Lumber Company and that no extension was contemplated from Kelliher north to Beaudette or anywhere else.

He further asserted that no requisition had been issued for the laying of new steel on the Minnesota & International from Brainerd to Kelliher. In short, Mr. Gemmell stated that there was no truth to the story of a Twin City-Winnipeg line which would give the Minnesota & International and Northern Pacific connecting with the Canadian Northern a line 80 miles shorter than any other route from the Twin Cities to Winnipeg.

FOREST RANGERS GATHER AT BEMIDJI

State Forester Cox, of St. Paul, is eating With the State Fire Fighting Forces

J. P. SAUNDERS IS PRESENT

A Campaign of Education Will be Waged to Prevent Fires From Slashings, Etc.

State Forester Cox, of St. Paul, presided at the meeting of the forest rangers of the state held at Bemidji Thursday. A decision has been made to join the railroads in an effort to stop the peril of locomotives starting fires by joining with representatives of the railroads in a meeting to be held in the near future.

It was also decided to wage a systematic campaign of education among the farmers as to the proper way of disposing of their slashings after clearing land.

Forester Cox expressed the hope that the forestry system organized by him in Minnesota last May would have reached such a stage of perfection by next spring that serious conflagrations would be impossible.

He said he hoped it would be so apparent to the legislature when it next assembles that the work of guarding the forests is of such importance that proper appropriations will be readily available.

The rangers present were: Walter Eisenach, Aitkin; Percy Vibert, Cloquet; J. P. Saunders, Brainerd; H. C. Nelson, Grand Rapids; M. J. Thornton, Deer River; A. C. DePuy, Park Rapids; Percy Records, Thief River Falls; E. A. Linder, Warroad; William Kilby, Baudette; H. W. Winslow, Northome; Gus Peterson, International Falls; Fred Bessette, Orr; E. E. Campbell, Tower; Hans Kasper, Grand Marais; L. F. Johnson, Bemidji.

Pillager Herald: Roy Waite broke ground on Wednesday on his lot on River Street, for a new house to be built at once. The cellar is to be 10x14, house 20x26, one story, a bungalow, cellar and foundation laid up with rock, lime and sand.

Parker Waite and son, working with an average crew of four men, finished the extensive contracts undertaken with, and for Mr. Shumacher on his big farm last Friday. OLD SHIP CLOCKS.

Crude Devices Mariners Used In Reckoning Time.

SANDGLASS MOST POPULAR.

If It Were Carefully Attended to the Skipper Could Tell the Days Fairly Well, but It Was Often Juggled—The First Chronometers.

To ascertain the time when at sea is now a matter of the utmost simplicity. But such was not the case in the old sailing days, and in order to acquire even the vaguest idea of longitude and time the seaman had recourse to curious devices.

Crude as these devices appear compared with present day instruments, they save the mariner from chaos and destruction, and even if he could not name the hour with any degree of certainty he at least knew the day of the week.

Eclipses of the moon and the positions of the stars afforded a little guide to the skipper, who was, nevertheless, greatly handicapped by his lack of astronomical knowledge and the inferior quality of his spyglass. Moreover, eclipses could not be arranged for every night in the week, and there were dark nights when the stars could not be seen, so various devices had to be pressed into service.

The most popular form of old sea clock was the sandglass. Many of these glasses were timed to run twenty-four hours, and prior to the ship leaving land the glass was set exactly at noon. If it were carefully watched and turned as soon as the sand ran down the skipper could reckon the days with fair accuracy.

Side by side with the large glass were placed half hour and minute glasses. The man at the helm carefully watched this old sea clock and announced the time at regular intervals by striking a bell. It was customary to estimate the duration of any incident by so many glasses. "To flog the glass" was an operation very congenial to lazy seamen. It consisted in turning the glass before all the sand had run down so that the watch was appreciably shortened.

When the twenty-four hour glass was employed a little juggling was indulged in for the purpose of finding the longitude. The difference between the twenty-four hour glass and the time by the sun was estimated and this difference was held to represent the longitude east or west, according as the sun's time might be before or after the time returned by the glass.

"Taking the sun" was a weird and wonderful operation. Clumsy quadrants were utilized, and toward mid-day the captain appeared on deck to perform his solemn duty. After much screwing of eyes and waggling of the quadrant the captain would bawl out to the mate, "Make it — bells," the number varying according to personal idiosyncrasies.

A demand for a more satisfactory device for estimating time at sea was responsible for experiments being made with pendulum clocks, though with little success. The interest of inventors was aroused when the English government in 1714 offered £10,000 to any one inventing a method of reckoning longitude to within a degree, or sixty miles; £15,000 if within forty miles and £20,000 if within thirty miles.

John Harrison, an obscure Yorkshire carpenter, who had achieved a local reputation by repairing and cleaning clocks, came forward with a chronometer which at once attracted attention. Through the influence of Dr. Halley he was enabled to make a voyage in a government vessel to Lisbon, where he succeeded in determining the longitude to within 1 degree 30 minutes.

For this achievement he was granted £500 to enable him to proceed with his invention. After thirty years' hard toll he produced a chronometer on which the present marine chronometer is based. His invention was shaped like a large watch, and in 1761 Harrison's son embarked for Jamaica in order to carry out tests. On the voyage out the chronometer was only 5.1 seconds in error, and during the whole trip from Portsmouth to Jamaica and back the variation was only 1 minute 54.5 seconds.

The accuracy of the chronometer thus enabled the longitude to be determined within eighteen miles, a result which exceeded the admiralty's most sanguine expectations. After further demonstrations an act of parliament was passed in 1765 awarding Harrison £20,000, half of the money to be paid as soon as he explained how his timekeeper was constructed and the remainder when the government was convinced that these timekeepers could be made by others. Despite the fulfillment of these conditions, Harrison had to wait several years before the money was paid over.

Larum Kendal, who had been Harrison's apprentice and who was ultimately his successor, followed on the lines laid down by his master and produced a chronometer which was used by Captain Cook during his daring voyage in the Resolution. Of this chronometer Cook wrote, "Our longitude can never be erroneous while we have so good a guide as Mr. Kendal's watch."

Various horologists have introduced so many improvements that little trace of Harrison's model is to be discerned in the modern chronometer, though to him must be assigned the credit of pointing out the way.

THE Rev. Dr. George R. Lunn, Socialist, who was recently elected mayor of Schenectady, N. Y., is thirty-eight years old. He was born in Lenox, Ia. His parents moved to Des Moines when he was an infant, and he attended the public schools there until he was twelve years old. At that age he started out to seek his fortune and decided to go to Omaha.

A year later he went to Grand Island, Neb., where his family had moved after he left Des Moines, and he got employment with an insurance company. A few months later, with $8 in his pocket, he went to Bellevue, Neb., to take up his studies for the ministry at Bellevue college. After graduating there he spent one year at Princeton and then returned to Later he entered Union Theological seminary in New York and two years later was graduated. During his last year at the seminary he preached at Cold Spring on the Hudson and there met Miss Mabel Healy, who is now Mrs. Lunn. From Union Theological seminary Dr. Lunn was called to the position of assistant pastor of the Lafayette avenue Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, then the third largest Presbyterian church in the country, and he remained there three years.

In the fall of 1903 Dr. Lunn was called to the pastorate of the aristocratic First Reformed church, Schenectady. A year later he organized the People's church.

MAURICE MAETERLINCK.

He Has Been Awarded the 1911 Nobel Prize For Literature.

Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian author, who has been awarded the Nobel prize of $40,000 for literature, is forty-nine years old. He was twenty-seven when, having dedicated his life to the profession of poet, he published a volume of verse, "Serres Chaudes," and a play, "La Princesse Maleine."

Thereupon Figaro spoke of Maeterlinck as "the Belgian Shakespeare." Later when the author had published the first of his famous essays some one with a liking for comparisons named him "the Belgian Emerson." In 1892 Maeterlinck brought out the most successful of his plays, "Peleas et Melisande," which was quickly followed by "Alladine et Palomides." He wrote two philosophical works and then returned to drama. His latest in this line is "The Blue Bird."

Bricks That Float.

There is no particular demand at the present time for bricks that will float, and it does not seem probable that there ever will be. And that is the very reason why the new floating brick will be looked upon as a curiosity. It is a real brick, made for building construction, and the only queer thing about it is that it floats like a block of wood when thrown into the water. The brick has been designed for use as an insulation in the construction of cold storage plants, breweries and refrigeration plants and is meant to take the place of cork, flax, charcoal fiber and sawdust, all of which are imperfect insulating materials. It has been found that the use of the latter has often been attended by rot and foulness.

REAR ADMIRAL WAINWRIGHT.

One of the Best Liked Officers in the Navy Will Retire Soon.

When Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright retires from active service in December the navy will lose not only one of its best liked officers, but one of its fighters.

When the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor Wainwright was the executive officer of the ill fated vessel.

He was acting for a chance to blow up a few Spanish ships and their complements in return, and the chance came to him. He was given command of the Gloucester, which had been converted from a yacht to a dispatch boat. It carried fewer than 100 men, a couple of six pounders and some light guns.

REAR ADMIRAL WAINWRIGHT.

While Sampson was blockading the harbor of Santiago Wainwright, with the Gloucester, was assigned the hazardous task of running close in to the mouth of the harbor every night in order to make sure the enemy should not escape. When Cervera's fleet finally came out Wainwright, with the Gloucester, though he was not supposed to do any fighting, closed with two torpedo boat destroyers, the Pluton and Furor. He feared that these destroyers might get within striking distance of one of the big battleships and destroy it with a torpedo while attention was concentrated on the larger Spanish vessels. The result was that the Gloucester engaged the two destroyers.

Under the personal direction of Wainwright the gunners literally tore the steel armored destroyers to pieces. First the Pluton staggered and ran ashore in a sinking condition in less than half an hour's fight. Then, smashed by projectiles, the Furor caught fire. One gun crew after another was shot down, and in a little while the vessel ran up the white flag. Two-thirds of the officers and men of the two destroyers had been killed or wounded. Wainwright was promoted and thanked for his work.

For Cramps.
A piece of old fashioned candle wick worn around the leg in the garter place next to the skin will prevent or cure cramp in the calf of the leg or in the foot. I have proved this by personal experience. I believe this would prove effectual in preventing swimmers' cramp. Those liable to cramp while in the water would be wise to try it. Cotton batting wrapped around the body from the armpits downward saved the life of a man suffering agony from painters' cramp. It gave instant relief.—National Magazine

"After struggling through a very hard summer with our little girl, I at last found a food for her that is really good. At birth she weighed eight pounds and when eight months old she only weighed ten and one-quarter pounds. After trying everything, I gave up hopes of ever seeing her any bigger, until one day I sent for your free sample, received it and tried it. Seeing that it agreed, I secured a bottle at our drug-gists and continued with great results. In one week she gained two pounds and we can almost see her grow. I must certainly speak well of Mellin's Food and will with all my heart."

DR. W. H. FURNESS SAYS CHIMPANZEES THINK.

Psychologist's Experiments Give Him Faith In Their Power to Reason.

Dr. William H. Furness, a psychologist of Wallingford, Pa., after several years of work has succeeded in educating two chimpanzees to a point where, he declares, they have proved they have reasoning powers.

His experiments, he says, have conclusively demonstrated that chimpanzees are capable of discriminating between objects and that the lower animals when properly trained utilize the functions of brain and really think.

When the chimpanzees had attained perfection in miming a gradual deviation was made to other lines in order to determine their reasoning powers. At this point the animals pass from those of merely the animal into the near realm of the human.

Boards were placed in the cages having a large square opening and large holes. The animals were given a ball and square piece of wood, both of which exactly fitted openings in the board. The careful scrutiny of the instructors saw that the animals examined the block and ball and pounced after them against the board in high glee. After a few days one of the chimpanzees looked intently at the square opening in the board and endeavored to force the ball through it. The opening was too small to allow its passage, and the chimpanzee then picked up the square block and pushed it through. Later both animals, Dr. Furness says, by the slow process of pure reason without the slightest assistance on his part, learned that only the ball would fit into the circle and only the block would pass through the square.

An extension of the experiment has been made during the past two years, and it has been learned that the chimpanzees will now differentiate any size or shape.

One of Tom Hood's.
There was a noted brand of tobacco which the sailors of England chewed in the early years of the nineteenth century—"pigtail." And it is commemorated in one of the most ingenious of Thomas Hood's punning verses, in which he recounts the life, love and sorrow of a sailor, a British sailor:
His head was turned, and so he chewed
His pigtail till he died.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY NAMED.

The Pope Again Sets It Apart as a Holy Day.

As a result of a decree of the pope issued in July in reference to holy days St. Patrick's day was struck off the list of obligatory holy days on which Catholics are called upon to hear mass and abstain from unnecessary work. On the request of the Irish Catholic hierarchy, however, the pope has just issued another decree which is most important to Irish people throughout the world.

According to this, the feast of St. Patrick will continue to be a holy day without, however, being subject to the law of fasting or abstinence.
